9 ITCHING CHILDREN

No Sleep at Night. No Rest by Day. How These Little Ones Had to Suffer.

My children, nine in number, were all troubled with an itching of the skin. They could not sleep at night, and through the day my wife felt ashamed to see the way those little ones had to suffer. So we concluded to try Cuticura Remedies, and believe if we had not used your valuable remedies our little family would not have been cured yet. Cuticura Remedies took all of this itch out of their skins, inside of six weeks. My wife then bought more, and kept on giving it to the children, and thank God and your valuable Cuticura Remedies, my children have not got a blemish on them. ROBERT SHUHAN, President Bricklayers Union No. 1a, Elizabeth, N. J.

Eczema 10 Years Cured

I purchased and used Cuticura with the most gratifying results. I was troubled with eczema in the form of salt rheum for ten years, and had been despaired of being cured. Cuticura, with the help of the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Resolvent, has permanently removed my complaint, and left my flesh sound and healthy. JAMES T. WILSON, Manufacturing Chemist, 62 Beekman Street, New York, N. Y.

Cuticura Remedies

If the thousands of little babies who have been cured of agonizing, itching, burning, bleeding, scaly, and blotchy skin and scalp diseases could write, what a host of letters would be received by the proprietors of the Cuticura Remedies. Few can appreciate the agony these little ones suffer, and when these great remedies relieve in a single application the most distressing eczemas and itching and burning skin diseases, and point to a speedy and permanent cure, it is positively inhuman not to use them without a moment's delay.

Sold everywhere. Price, Cuticura, 50c.; Soap, 25c.; Resolvent, $1. Prepared by the Potter Drug and Chemical Corporation, Boston.

CATARRH
Is a most loathsome, dangerous, and prevalent malady. It is a blood disease, usually of scrofulous origin, and one for which local treatment is useless. Before it can be cured the poison must be eradicated from the system, and to do this the disease must be treated through the blood. For this purpose no remedy is so effective as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
SUCCESSFULLY
"For the past eight years I have been severely afflicted with Catarrh, more especially in winter. My digestion was considerably impaired, and my general health greatly impaired by the dropping into my throat. In September last I resolved to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to use it at once, and am glad to testify to a great improvement in my health."—Frank Tesou, Jr., engineer, 271 West Fourth street, New York City.
"My daughter, 13 years old, was afflicted with Catarrh from her fifth year. Last August she was

ROAD SENSE.

GOOD ADVICE JUST IN TIME.

Every Road Supervisor Should Study these Facts, and Preserve this Paper.

The following valuable essay on How to Make and Take Care of Roads is the most pointed that has yet appeared. It is prepared by a man of intelligent and practical observation—a man of solid sense and clear judgment—ex-President James Wood, of the New York State Agricultural Society. The Compiler will keep track of him that its readers may get the benefit of more of his road talks.

Read the Following.

"The Road Question" shows great vitality. For a number of years it has claimed much attention in public discussions, in the press of all sorts, and, as a legitimate result, in the halls of legislation. It is a healthful sign that it will not "down." Evidently there is a demand for better roads which must be met, and the discussion will continue until the difficult problem is solved. That the problem is a difficult one is proved by the fact that no one in the public press, or in the State legislatures, has as yet been wise enough to present a scheme that meets all the requirements of the situation. But the difficulties in the path should not deter us from pressing on, step by step, until the desired end is reached.

Many of the writers who have treated the subject—and some of them have written with great ability—have quite overshot the mark by recommending too much. They have held up the examples of European roads, which have been built and are maintained under conditions very different from our own, some of which we do not desire ever to see in America. The modern railway makes the building of main through roads unnecessary and demonstrates the advisability of concentrating attention upon the improvement of local roads. The European standards of excellence are not practicable for us on many accounts. Our population is much less dense, and our distances are greater. Labor is not so abundant, and is much more costly. We have not such accumulations of wealth in our rural population. Our climate, in the Northern States, is more destructive, with its extremes of heat and cold, and its fluctuations from excessive moisture to severe drouth. We do not have the "paternal governments" to look after the construction and the proper maintenance, down to the minutest care, of our undertakings. We must, in the first place, "cut our coat according to our cloth," and, in the next place, we must so cut and make it as to have it fit the wearer and be suited to his needs. Nearly all the schemes that have been offered have involved too much expense, and the magnitude of the outlay required has proved fatal to them. Of course they have been rejected. So far as the improvement of our roads depends upon the taxation of our farmers, all successful plans must be based upon the amount of expenditure that the present condition of our agricultural interests will warrant. We have our ideals in many things which we can never realize, and there are many things that would be of real benefit to us which we must forego because we cannot afford them. When our discussion of the road question has been carried out upon practicable lines, so as to bring out a clear comprehension of the situation, it will not be long before our needs are met by suitable legislation, and the plans adopted will be carried into successful execution.

It is my present purpose to suggest methods for the permanent improvement of existing roads in successive stages that can be pursued as far as may seem to be desirable, or as far as the means at disposal will warrant. This plan has the advantage of a gradual development, which, if intelligently undertaken, will tend, while it is obtaining the object desired in the most economical manner, to educate the public in the work of improvement, and will stimulate in them a desire to "go on unto perfection."

Drainage.

The first consideration in the improvement of existing roads, as in the proper construction of new ones, is the removal of water. This includes both the surface water from rain and melting snow, and the water that is in the subsoil from whatever source it may come. This applies to all kinds of clays and loams. Where the subsoil is gravel the natural drainage may accomplish all that is desired, but in these cases the speedy removal of surface water is important. Persons who have not given special attention to the matter are generally unaware how much ordinary roads are benefited by subdrainage. If the road bed is dry when winter sets in, the frost has comparatively little effect upon it, and when the frost goes out in the spring the road settles very quickly, while the frost goes out much sooner than in undrained roads. No well drained road becomes "bottomless" in springtime, nor is it so torn to pieces by heavy travel. Throughout the year heavy rains have but little effect upon it. In view of the immense benefits from subdrainage it seems surprising that every public road that is not upon a gravel subsoil is not drained. In no other way can the expenditure of an equal amount of money accomplish so much. The kind of drain may depend upon circumstances, but ordinarily it is better to use well burnt tiles. The joints should be protected with well fitting collars, and the descent should be enough to insure a speedy discharge. The place of discharge should be judiciously selected and should be protected where possible with a retaining wall of stone. As there is liability of neglect in clearing the outlet from accumulations of earth, grass, sticks, &c., there should be ample outfall. In narrow roads one drain beneath the centre will accomplish the purpose, but in roads of considerable width there should be two drains parallel with the central line. In all cases there should be double drains through all "springy places." In such places, in regions where small stones are abundant, we have known great and permanent benefits to result from filling a broad and deep drain with stones, and thus raising the road bed at the same time that the water was removed.

There are many townships and counties in the State of New York where there should be a drain under every rod of road, while there are some others with the character of subsoil above mentioned where subdrainage is unnecessary.

The removal of surface water is much more generally understood. In the first place the road bed should have an arched surface, the grade of which will be more particularly mentioned hereafter, and there should be broad, free gutters at the roadside to receive the water and convey it away. If roads are well constructed but few breaks will be required, but upon hills they are frequently necessary. They should be made very wide in proportion to the height of the embankment and to the depth of the gutter, so that vehicles can pass over them easily. A short, sharp, jerky break is, always and everywhere, an abomination. Much judgment is required in disposing of the surface water, in grading the gutters and in conveying it from one side of the road until it is finally discharged. When it is taken across the road it should invariably be through culverts beneath the surface. These may be constructed of planks, or of stone, or large terra cotta pipes may be used.

The proper surface and subdrainage of roads is of such importance in their permanent improvement that even if nothing else is attempted this will have accomplished great good for the present and for the future.

Compacting.

In all improved roads of the higher classes, the use of heavy rollers is a necessity. It is not generally known how much ordinary "dirt roads" may be benefited by their use. Of course they have but little effect upon sands or sandy loams, but upon nearly all other soils they can be used with advantage. The compacting of the road bed makes it "sound." A greater percentage of the rainfall runs off from the surface, and much less is taken into the bed. The compacted surface also offers a more even resistance to the impact of wheels, while stones are pressed down out of the way. In grading up a road the roller should be kept in operation as the successive layers of material are added, so as to make the whole solid and homogeneous.

Shortly after the frost is out of the ground in the spring the roads should be thoroughly rolled. It is surprising to see how much they will compress, and how solid the bed will become. As it dries, it will become hard and fitted for use. Thereafter, it will not become so muddy after rains, nor so dusty in dry weather. Before winter sets in, a thorough compressing forces out much water and causes the operation of frost to be less injurious to travel. An occasional use of the roller is of advantage during thawing weather in winter, smoothing the surface and preventing excessive roughness when freezing again comes.

For road purposes much greater weight is required than in the ordinary rolling of land in farming operations. It is advisable to have from two to eight tons to a length of six or eight feet, according to the power that can be used. It is not often convenient to use more than four or six horses, and a four or five-ton roller is as heavy as is practicable. With steam power much greater weights are used to advantage. The greater the weight the greater the benefit, within the limits of the power of locomotion and the strength of the bridges to be crossed. Of course the greater the diameter the more easily will the roller be moved.

The best roller for the purposes here recommended is the hydraulic one. The cylinder is constructed of boiler iron, with inlets and faucets in the end for filling with water and emptying, and with a manhole for repairs. When empty it is light and can be easily moved from place to place, and can be used for farm purposes with one team. When required for heavy work, it can be filled with water at some convenient place, and almost any desired weight can be obtained. When the operations are completed, the water is easily and quickly discharged, and the lightened roller is taken away.

Dressing the Surface.

We would next call attention to the benefits resulting from dressing the surface of roads with materials of a dry nature and compacting qualities. Those who use a road throughout the year know very well that there are portions that are naturally sticky and are always bad after rains. Such portions should be first selected for improving the surface. Where good gravel is obtainable within convenient distances, it is the most economical material to use. Occasional dressings of an inch in thickness are better than the addition of a large amount at one time. Thorough rolling greatly benefits it. Where an additional expense can be met, it is well to screen the gravel and first give a dressing of that which may run from the size of a hickory nut up to that of an egg, and after this has been well rolled, the finer portions may be used as a finishing. Where gravel cannot be obtained, it is of benefit to many places to dress them with sand. Near steam factories large quantities of coal ashes can sometimes be obtained. These greatly improve the surface of most roads. It is often a matter of surprise to see the wretched condition of even the main streets in wealthy villages where there are good gravel banks near by, or thousands of loads of coal ashes that could be had for the hauling.

The Old Fort.

The adjutant general in his recent report, says the Hagerstown Mail, suggested the use of old Fort Frederick, near Green Spring Furnace, Washington county, as a permanent camping ground for the State militia. This fort, the remains of which are in an excellent state of preservation and could be easily restored, is a most interesting structure. For the purpose of an encampment it seems to be admirably adapted. The Sun advocates the adoption of this historical old fort for permanent camping purposes as follows:

With the completion of the Potomac Valley extension of the Western Maryland Railroad from Williamsport to Cherry Run, W. Va., it will be easily accessible. The location is on a spur of North Mountain, beautiful, high and healthful, and has the advantage of the water of Big Pool, a very deep lake several miles in extent, formed by the filling up of a valley by the waters of the canal. Adjacent to the pool is the Potomac. Fort Frederick was constructed by Governor Sharp in 1757 at a cost of $6,000. Its exterior walls were each 120 yards in length. It is heavily constructed with limestone walls four feet thick at the bottom, and contained barracks sufficient for a garrison of three hundred men. It was built during the bloody Indian incursion which followed close upon the defeat of Braddock and which depopulated the valley of the AnCetam, and its object was to protect the Western frontier "from the incursions and horrid depredations of the savage enemy." The walls are still standing, in a fair state of preservation, seventeen feet in height. A large breach has been made to admit wagons, and a portion of the walls have been demolished to build a barn.

Advice to the Engaged.

TO THE MAN.

If you think that a woman is any weaker minded than a man, stop where you are.

If you have chosen a pretty woman without regard to her other qualities, halt, you are on the wrong road.

If you think that a house should have only one head and that head be yours, postpone your wedding indefinitely.

If you have an idea that you are too good for a picked-up dinner, remain a bachelor.

If you are of the opinion that marriage makes man and wife one and that you are to be that one, send in your regrets at once.

If you intend to treat yourself any better than you treat your wife, don't take one.

If you have found it a hard task to be happy yourself, don't try to make any one else happy.

If you suppose that running the house consists in paying the bills, don't undertake it.

If you are one of those men who think 10 per cent. of their income belongs to the taproom, in heaven's name let marriage alone.

If you incline to the opinion that any manners are good enough for home manners, don't try to have a home.

If you intend to encourage your wife by telling her that her cake, pudding, and pies are not so good as those your mother used to make, don't go any further; break the engagement.

TO THE WOMAN.

If you are going to marry a man for his looks, you mustn't be surprised when he gives you black ones.

If you are marrying for money only, you must only expect to get what money can buy.

If you only contemplate taking a husband in order to gain greater freedom, don't be surprised if he should profit by your example.

If you are merely marrying to spite your family, bear in mind that your husband doesn't belong to your family.

If you are going into the thing blindly, don't hold up your hands in holy horror when you get your eyes opened.

If you are marrying a man to reform him, it behooves you to exercise all the zeal and patience of the reformer.

If you have an idea that a cook book and an allowance can make a happy home, you should get yourself to a nunnery with all convenient speed.

If you expect that God will bless your home, because you put that sentiment in yellow worsted and an oak frame, you are doomed to disappointment.

If you don't feel that you are qualified to be a poor man's wife, don't marry a rich one.

If you are fond of dress and show and empty parade and take pleasure in the frivolities of life, don't marry a man at all, merely marry something that will pass for a man.

If you have an idea that married life is any easier than it was in your mother's time, because you can live in a boarding-house and put your washing out, don't try it.

If you have been engaged three times before this, you had better wait six months; perhaps this engagement may be followed by still another.

If you hold the opinion that husbands are like unto anything you have read of in novels, you would do well to inquire into the married life of those who wrote the books.

If you are merely getting to work out some theories of your own, you would do well to discuss them first with the man upon whom you intend to make the experiments.

If you are going to marry a man out of mere gratitude because he once saved your life, stop and ask yourself whether it is not paying too much for the service.—Ex.

The Potomac Fishing Shores.—In comparison with a few years ago, says the Alexandria Gazette, but few of the fishing shores on the river are being fished this season. Many of the shores which were famous a few years since are now deserted, and it is said the number operated is growing fewer every year. This is accounted for by the trap-net fishing at the mouth of the river and by the falling off in run of fish in the Potomac.

Two masked men entered the post office at Boise City, Idaho, Monday night, and at the point of a pistol compelled Postmaster Leonard to hand over $1,200 in cash. The robbers escaped.

The very latest fancy in the line of ball programs is a miniature check-book. The ladies carry them, tear out a leaf for every waltz, polka, etc., enter the name on their stubs in quite the form of a business transaction, and are expected to honor the engagements when they are presented.

MOZART.

Born Jan. 27, 1756—Died Dec. 5, 1791.

Immortal spirit, once enshrined in clay,
(Frail tenement for such a noble soul.)
The notes that fell unheeded in thy day,
In triumph down a century's stages roll.
Thou, who so keenly felt and sweetly voiced
The joys and sorrows of humanity,
Wert lone and sad, when the gay world rejoiced,
Bowed by the weight of dark adversity.
But through the mists that shroud the silent Past
Thy sorrowing face, with radiant eyes, looks down,
Thy genius, masterful, divine, at last
Has nightly won the victor's fadeless crown.
For on that artist-brow, to-day appears

A SINGULAR COMBAT.

The bitter animosity existing in France between the Royalists and Imperialists found its culmination on the restoration of Louis XVIII, and innumerable quarrels and bloody duels were the result. In Paris the two factions met more numerously at the Palais Royal than at any other given point, and here the insult, the challenge and its acceptance followed each other in rapid succession, and both parties, immediately adjourning to some convenient locality in the vicinity, not unfrequently settled the whole affair within the hour.

In this state of affairs it behooved every man of mark to be a good swordsman and a dead shot, as about the only means of prolonging his life, for if known to be inferior in the use of deadly weapons he was almost certain to be involved in a quarrel with some skillful antagonist, who would take both pride and pleasure in sending him out of existence.

Wherever dueling is fashionable, there are always more or less professed duelists—men who have trained themselves in fight with deadly weapons, who know all the nice points of advantage, and how to obtain them, who have schooled their nerves to an iron rigidity, and their features, manners and language to express a perfect confidence in their success, and who boast of glory in their individual prowess, and the number of victims they have murderously sent out of the world.

Yet these same apparently bold, daring, reckless and bloody minded men are generally cowards at heart, and have really as much fear of danger as those whose timidity is made glaringly manifest; but, like the professional gambler, they have been trained to calculate the chances for and against themselves, and seldom venture on what gives promise of a doubtful issue, so that to save yourself from the annoyance of these gentry it is only necessary to have it generally known that in an affair of honor you would be quite as likely to kill as get killed.

There were many of this class in Paris at that day who actually made a living by dueling—they had their price, like the Italian assassins of a former period, for getting rid of persons obnoxious to their employers—though, as we have already stated, they generally took good care to know all the fighting qualities and idiosyncrasies of the proposed victim before actually closing the bargain of blood; and if they discovered too much danger in the case, they readily invented such an excuse as would save both their lives and credit; for who would dare question the motives and courage of men so famous for bloody deeds? Sometimes, however, they made serious mistakes, notwithstanding all their nice calculations, and then the world became a trifle better for suddenly getting rid of a human curse.

There were others who fought for the mere love of fighting, because their combative and destructive organs would never let them rest in peace; and these were always ready for anybody and any mode, it being immaterial to them whether they were to fire at their antagonist at ten paces, cross swords with him at one, or be tied to him for a quick settlement with dirks. Then again there were others who fought to revenge slights, both real and fancied, or to settle personal or political animosities, or because they were embittered by disappointment, or because they were tired of living and did not care to commit suicide. And of course in all this range of character there were many eccentricities displayed, for where dueling was so common that an ordinary meeting would scarcely be mentioned on the following day, certain persons were sure to seek to make themselves remembered by some peculiarity that could not fail to be long talked of for its novelty.

Most of these duels, as we have intimated, were between partisans—between Royalists and Imperialists—and when they met at the Palais Royal, the great headquarters of Paris, the mode of insult was simply easy. A saucy look, a grimace, or a smile of contempt was frequently sufficient to draw forth a challenge; but if these failed a jostle, a push or a tread on the foot was always certain to be a success.

One day an Imperialist officer, one Captain Honitan, who was suffering from gout, was slowly hobbling along under the famous wooden gallery of the palace in question when, being somewhat pressed by the crowd, and fearful of being injured in his suffering limb, he took a sudden step aside, and accidentally trod on the foot of an officer of the Royal guard. Quick as lightning the latter, a young man of spirit and fire, seized the former by the nose and then cuffed him on both sides of the head. The face of the Imperialist turned deadly pale as he said, quite calmly and politely, evidently controlling his passion by a master effort of the will:

"I would have apologized for what was really an accident, had not monsieur put it out of my power."

"I do not want an apology from such as you," was the insulting reply.

"Your name?" demanded the other.

"I shall remember," rejoined Captain Honitan, as he turned to depart.

"Pray do not forget," said the lieutenant, at the same time treading heavily on the gouty foot of the captain, and thus drawing from him an involuntary cry of pain.

Davais then walked away with a proud and haughty air, leaving the other suffering fearfully from pain and rage. As soon as he could extricate himself from the crowd, the captain called for a carriage, and was quickly driven out of sight.

For a whole week Lieutenant Davais remained in momentary expectation of a challenge from the man he had so grossly insulted, but none came. Another week passed away and the Imperialist was not heard from.

"He is a coward and unworthy of my notice," said the dashing young officer, with a proud smile of contempt.

"Bah! this comes of plebian blood, Henri!"

Months passed away and Henri Davais, who was the youngest son of an ancient and honorable family of Royalists, was promoted to a captaincy. He had fought two duels since his insult to Captain Honitan, but still nothing had been heard of that officer, and the little affair was nearly forgotten or remembered only as a sneering jest. More months passed and Captain Davais, affianced to a beautiful lady of rank, began to prepare for his wedding.

The morning of the intended wedding day arrived, and Captain Henry Davais rose to prepare for nuptials that were to make him the happiest man in Paris. While engaged at his toilet a servant announced a visitor—a stranger.

"I am engaged, and can see no one now," was the reply.

"I beg your pardon, Monsieur le capitaine," said the voice of the stranger, who had followed on the heels of the servant, "but I know you will see me."

"And who are you, sir, and why this intrusion?" demanded the young officer in an imperious tone, as he coldly ran his eye over the person of a middle aged man in plain citizen's dress.

"Well, sir?"

"Monsieur le capitaine seems not to know me, but yet monsieur may have the happiness to remember the pleasure he once had in pulling the nose, boxing the ears and treading on the foot of a quiet looking gentleman, under the gallery of the Palais Royal, some twelve months since."

This was said with the most freezing politeness, but there was something awfully wicked in the cold gray eye of the speaker, as it all the time rested quietly and steadily upon the other.

"Ha!" said Davais, flushing to the temples, "I know you now; but to save your reputation you should have come sooner."

"My reputation, fortunately, was not in the keeping of a rather forward boy," returned the other, with a grim smile and mocking bow. "I have come at last to ask the pleasure of Monsieur le Captain Henri Davais to a little quiet walk thinking the beautiful bride elect might be pleased to hear of the prowess of her lover on his wedding day."

Davais bit his lip.

"I think," he said, "I should be justified in putting you off for the present, but I will not balk your kind intentions. We need not go far nor wait long. Here are small swords, and twenty paces hence is the garden."

"Monsieur le captaine is so obliging," bowed the other. "Perhaps they lied who said monsieur was a coward and would not fight!"

"You shall see," cried the young royalist, almost bursting with suppressed passion. "Coward or no coward, I have sent your betters to the devil, and you shall soon follow."

In less than ten minutes the two antagonists were in the garden, and their swords crossed. Honitan was perfectly cool and self possessed, but Davais was almost blind with rage. The latter was accounted the best swordsman in his corps, and there were the fewest number that could cope with him, which was one cause of his overbearing insolence, but in less than a minute he discovered to his horror that he was only a mere child in the hands of his antagonist, who seemed rather disposed to play with than fight him. In the course of five minutes, however, he received a disabling wound, and then, like lightning, the blade of the other flashed close before his eyes and severed his nose clean down to his face.

"Monsieur le capitaine did me the honor to pull my nose—I have done myself the honor to cut off his. Good day, captain. I will send your servant to look after you. When you are well I will call again. My compliments to the bride and how does she like your beauty?"

This affair created a great sensation in the upper circles of Paris. The wedding, of course, did not come off on the appointed day, and subsequently the lady declined to marry a man whose features were so terribly disfigured.

From his sudden disappearance on the morning of the duel nothing was seen or heard of Captain Honitan till his adversary had so far recovered as to be again abroad, when, at a like early hour in the day, he as suddenly reappeared.

"I have been expecting you," said Captain Davais when they again met.

"Monsieur le capitaine does me too much honor. I hope my visits do not prove troublesome?"

"Follow me," returned Davais, keeping himself fearfully calm.

He conducted his visitor into an empty hall, and produced a pair of pistols. Handing one to his enemy he requested him to load it, while he proceeded to charge the other.

"You are more than a match for me with swords," he said, "and so we will try these. It is my wish that one of us may not quit this hall alive. We will take our places and fire at the word."

At the first fire the imperialist received a flesh wound in the shoulder, and the royalist lost a portion of his right ear.

"Monsieur le capitaine did me the honor to box my right ear," said Honitan, coolly; "I have done myself the honor to shoot off his."

In a couple of minutes the pistols were again loaded, and the foes in their respective places. This time Captain Honitan received a wound in the neck, not necessarily mortal, and Captain Davais lost a portion of his left ear.

The imperialist coolly repeated his taunting words.

As they were taking their positions for the third fire Captain Honitan remarked, with bitter emphasis:

"Now, then, Monsieur le captaine, I will remember the foot!"

Both pistols cracked together at the word, and both antagonists fell back dead—the one shot through the heart, the other through the brain.

So terminated this singular combat, the closing scenes of which were reported by a servant who saw and heard all.

They Had a Dance.

IT DID NOT APPEAR A SURPRISING THING TO THE RESIDENT.

After dinner one of the village officials came over to the hotel and informed me that there was going to be a dance that night out in the country about four miles, and asked me if I didn't want to attend.

"Is that the same dance I heard them talking about last evening?"

"Very likely."

"The Stevens boys are going to be there?"

"Certainly; they live out that way."

"And the Jones boys?"

"They'll be there."

"And is there a young man named Burt Robinson?"

"And is there another named Alf Williams?"

"And there's a girl around here somewhere called Jennie, isn't there?"

"Exactly; she's my daughter."

"Well, I guess I won't go."

"But why? I can promise you a splendid time."

"Well, the Stevens boys and the Jones boys were both in town this forenoon buying revolvers for the dance, and I heard that Burt Robinson was going to stick a big bowie-knife into Alf Williams if he asked Jennie to dance with him. Something was also mentioned about someone shooting old Scott if he showed up and about picking a fuss with young Livingston and shooting him full of lead."

"Is that all you heard?" he asked.

"Isn't that enough? I don't want to be killed out there."

"Colonel, don't be captious," he earnestly remarked, "there's going to be dancing, in course, and we want you to lead the Virginia reel. There's goin' to be shooting, in course, and we have reserved a place for you right at the back door where you can tumble out the minute anybody whoops. The boys will be disappointed if you don't come."

I didn't go, however. Next morning I was inquiring for my friend of the day before, and the merchant whom I interrogated replied:

"I reckon they hain't toted him in yet."

"Did anything happen him last night?"

"He just happened to be killed out thar at the dance, 'long with two others, and they do say that there was seven wounded!"—Detroit Free Press.

The attempt of anarchists to blow up the Spanish Cortes in Madrid has caused the greatest excitement in Spain. The prisoners at their examination gloried in admitting that they were anarchists and attempted to defend their creed. The police of Paris claim to have discovered a plot of anarchists to poison the food of wealthy persons.

"Now look here," said the professor to the infuriated bull, "you are my superior in strength, I am your superior in mind. Let us arbitrate this matter and see which should by right get the better of our controversy."

Later—The professor lost.

THE QUAKERS.

In the sixth bulletin of the religious series returns are given of sixteen denominations. I have only sufficient space at my disposal to review one, and I have selected the one which I think will especially interest you—the Friends. The Friends, or Quakers, as they are often called, were founded by George Fox, an Englishman, in London, in 1668. The founder began his preaching in 1656; he had gathered around him sixty evangelists. This movement was virtually the foundation of the society, but the first General Meeting did not occur until 1661. The second was held in 1672, and the Yearly Meeting was established in 1678. Encountering much opposition and severe persecution in England, many Friends emigrated to other lands, some of them arriving in this country at Boston in 1656, where they were subsequently scattered by persecution.

In 1661 they formed the first annual meeting in Rhode Island. From that time until 1878 it has been held regular at Newport, and since that date it has alternated between that city and Portland, Maine. In 1672 Yearly Meetings were organized in Maryland. In 1681 the first one was held in Pennsylvania. The first one in North Carolina was held in 1708, and in Ohio in 1812. They are divided into four bodies—the Orthodox, the Hicksite, the Wilburite and the Primitive, and the total number of communicants in the United States is 107,208. The Orthodox Friends are evangelical in their doctrine. They believe in man's utter ruin in the fall, vicarious atonement, the deity of Jesus Christ, the resurrection, eternal rewards and punishment, and the inspiration of the Scriptures. They accord to women full liberty in the ministry and every other position in the church.

Indiana leads the census of the Orthodox Friends with 25,915 recorded communicants, and Wayne county of the same State contains 3,111. Ohio is second with 10,8?1, Iowa third with 8,146, Kansas fourth with 7,762, New York fifth with 3,641, and Pennsylvania occupies the sixth place with 3,490 communicants. In Massachusetts, where their first settlement was made, there are now only 1,560 communicants, while in Rhode Island, the home of Roger Williams, there are only 617. In Colorado there are only 19, while in Louisiana there are 66. Philadelphia has 1,695 residing within its borders. The total number of Orthodox Friends in the United States is 80,652. They have 791 organizations, 725 churches and 90 halls, and own property to the value of $2,795,781.

The Hicksite Friends are so named from Elias Hicks, a minister who was foremost in preaching the doctrines which led to the separation. They do not own to the name Hicksite. Hicks was understood to deny the deity of Jesus Christ, the vicarious atonement, the personality of Satan and eternal punishment, promulgating views generally held by Unitarians respecting the fall of man, the authority and inspiration of the Scriptures, etc. The separation took place in Philadelphia in 1827 and in New York, Baltimore, Ohio and Indiana in 1828. Pennsylvania ranks first with the Hicksite Quakers. There are 10,001 within the State, 3,241 of whom are in the city of Philadelphia, 2,028 in Chester county, 1,618 in Bucks and 1,161 in Montgomery county. Throughout the United States their number is 21,992. The Hicksites have 201 organizations, 213 churches and 1 halls and own property valued at $1,661,?80.

The Wilburite Friends were named for John Wilbur, of New England, who was their principal leader. They seceded from the Orthodox body in New England Yearly Meeting in 1845, in the Ohio in 1854 and in the Western Iowa and Kansas in 1877. They are very conservative and were unwilling to adopt the new methods of reform as the church became aggressive in evangelistic and missionary work. They make much of the doctrine of the light within, holding that every man, by reason of the atonement, has an inward seed or light given him, which, as it is heeded, will lead him to salvation. They deny instantaneous conversion and the resurrection of the body. The controlling portion of the Philadelphia Yearling Meeting hold to the views of Wilbur, but have never separated from the body of the church further than to decline epistolary correspondence with all branches.

In Pennsylvania those who profess to follow the teachings of Wilbur are found in Westmoreland county. There are only 30 within that district. In Ohio there are 1,676, and in Iowa they number 1,539. The total number in the United States is 4,329. They have 52 organizations, 52 churches and one hall and their property is valued at $67,000. The last and smallest division of the society is known as the Primitive division. Its members are in faith and practice Wilburite. They separated from the Philadelphia Yearling Meeting because that body refused to correspond with the New England and Ohio (Wilbur) meetings, and they do not affiliate with the latter because they recognize the Philadelphia Meeting by ministerial visitations and by exchanging certificates of membership.

Their total number is 232, of whom 108 are found in Bucks and Philadelphia in Pennsylvania, 103 in New York, 14 in Massachusetts and 9 in Rhode Island. They have 9 organizations, 9 churches and own property to the value of $16,700. The summary of the four divisions show a total of 107,208 communicants. They have in all 1,056 organizations, 995 churches, 99 halls and own property to the value of $4,511,331.

"THIS WAY FOR THE HOLY LAND AND WAY STATIONS."

Blase American tourists can have a novelty next summer in the line of foreign peregrination. They can travel merrily from Jaffa to Jerusalem in a parlor car! Perhaps their sense of reverence would be more soothed by the old-time shoon and scallop and staff and covering the route by the active locomotion of their legs. But those who are 19th centuryists in their views will settle into their comfortable seat in a Pullman and hear the Arab conductor howl out "J'rus'lum! All out for J'rus'lum!" without being a bit disturbed in their mind. He will do it in Arabic, but there is no doubt about his swallowing half his words just the same.

This is the cheerful prospect held out by a French company which has just issued a prospectus of the "Jaffa and Jerusalem Railway company." The distance is a fraction over 51 miles. The rails, "sleepers," three locomotives, and 15 freight cars are already delivered at Jaffa.

The method of transportation from Jaffa to Jerusalem is an ox-wagon or landaus. The unfortunate pilgrim to the Holy Land who journeyed in this way began his discomforts in effecting a landing at Jaffa. The sea is very shallow on the coast of Palestine, and at Jaffa everything, passengers included, has to be taken off the ship in small boats, which put out to it for this purpose.

Palestine is nothing if not hilly, and the jaunt to the Sacred City is a bit of a jolt. Occasionally the road is rutty, and the wheels dig down into the landscape as if they were agriculturists in a new land.

However, if the thing didn't break down, they arrived at Jerusalem with their anatomy in a condition which allowed them to open their Badeckers and start in "to do" the sacred spot with praiseworthy heroism.

The Holy Land is one of those places which most people do not visit at all and few visit twice. So the pilgrims who have made their way thither before this year of grace 1892 will wish they had put it off till next summer, when the maiden locomotive will whistle and shriek and snort through the orange groves of Jaffa, while the smoke it belches forth will trail across the fertile valley of the Wady Sarar, along which the iron horse will caper for most of its course.

The natives will rub their eyes and look at the wonder almost as Herod might have done in the years when the Christian era was in its baby days if he had seen such a phenomenon. The apostles would have had to wait for trains in that case, and various possibilities in the way of luggage and cabmen suggest themselves with rather a rude shock to the sentiments of the pietist.

The French company which has sprung this railway on the Holy Land is not dealing with subjects of Herod the Tetrarch, nor forcing Apostles to study timetables and eat at railroad lunch counters. With all their trials they have escaped this at least, those holy men.

The company has obtained an absolute concession for 71 years of the line from Jaffa to Jerusalem, with the option of extensions to Nablous in the direction of Damascus, and to Gaza in the direction of Port Said.

A careful estimate has been made of the probable traffic which will be managed by the line. This estimate is formed on data and statistics collected on the spot, and it is supported by the consular reports of the foreign office and by the official records of the trade of the port of Jaffa. The company calculates on a gross annual return for its first few years of $250,000. On this basis, a minimum net annual revenue is looked for of $120,000. The payment of interest and the redemption of the bonds will take only $91,000 a year.

This is not a very stupendous outlook for traffic to American eyes, which are used to seeing larger returns from the rails. But it is not bad for a little railroad only 51 miles long between Jerusalem and Jaffa. Jerusalem is now a city of 50,000 inhabitants, and will probably grow a little from becoming a terminus of a railway line.

What the increase will be in pilgrims can only be conjectured. Two or three years later it can be told what effect the railway line from Jaffa to Jerusalem has really had.

Three Tariff Issues.

The free wool bill passed the lower house of Congress on Thursday by a vote of 194 to 60. A Republican Senate and President have still to act upon it. That action will doubtless be against it, and thus will be made up the first tariff issue. As the Lancaster Intelligencer remarks, and as everybody knows, there is no party that demands the release of protective duties from the whole list of imports: the difference between the parties is as to rates of duty and as to articles which should be released from duty. The coming contest will be made definite by the selections which have been made by the Democratic House of certain things from which it declares that the interest of the nation demands that the import duty shall be taken off. The first of these to receive its action is wool; and its argument is that it is a raw material which should be made as cheap as possible to the woolen manufacturers, in order that their industry may thrive. They declare that not only is wool, as a raw material, properly free from import duty, but that there is a special reason in addition for the release of the duty upon it, in the fact that the finer grades of wool are not grown in our country; and the home demand for the grades that are grown will be stimulated by the increased manufacture free wool will create; and the consequent increased demand for the cheaper wools for mixing purposes. The argument is that not only the wool manufacturer, but the wool grower is likely to be benitted by free wool; and it is one which should persuade Congress to test its worth; and which would probably do so if partisan considerations permitted the exercise of a free judgment.

Ores and fuel appeal nearly as strongly for free entry as wool. The seaboard section of the country will be greatly benefitted by it and seem to be entitled to it. Pennsylvania and the South ought to be able to compete successfully with Nova Scotia in the supply of coal to New England, and their interests do not demand the continuance of the duty on it. These sections will be benefitted by free ores: for though they have abundant ores, they are not of the quality that will alone make the quality of iron needed; but they must have the ores of Cuba or of the lakes to use with them. The South has no steel making ore in any quantity that we know of outside that at Cranberry, which does not seem to be the important deposit it was once held to be, and it needs cheap Cuban ores to enable it to start up the steel industry that it hungers for and cannot otherwise have. Free ore may curtail the mining industry of the lakes and lessen the value of the Cornwall product, but we know no good reason why either of these should be protected; particularly the latter, which has abundantly enriched the families that have lived on it for over a hundred years, and whose material interests demand no tax whatever from the government for their protection; nor do they need it. Their cheaply mined and rich ore will be worked at a great profit in competition with any deposit the world knows, and there will be no end to its outflow of wealth while it lasts.

And manufactured sugar has come to the front with a demand for its freedom from import duty, because of the acknowledged combination of all the refineries to put up and control its price. The combination is undoubtedly against public policy; and that the government should break it down by throwing the sugar market open to the manufacturers of the world seems to be a proposition against which nothing can be said save by the hurt holders of the sugar trust certificates; who should be thankful that they are not sent to jail for their brazen offense against their fellow citizens.

By the time Congress adjourns the Democratic members of the House, if they are bold, wise and vigilant, will have made up a lot of clearly defined and simple tariff issues upon which they can carry the country in November by a great majority.

THE Democratic State Convention will meet at Harrisburg to-morrow. There is little division of sentiment as to the Presidency. The current is decidedly for Cleveland. Hill seems to have lost his hold, and his southern trip is looked upon as a blunder.

CLEVELAND SURE.—At least the Philadelphia Times sums up the situation thus:

"There is no longer any question of dispute as to the attitude of the Democracy of Pennsylvania or of the nation as to the renomination of Cleveland for President. It is not political management that has put a great party in this substantially unanimous position before the nation. On the contrary, it is the voluntary and resolute expression of the Democratic people of every section of the country; and long before the National Convention shall meet at Chicago on the 20th of June, it is more than probable that the nomination of Cleveland will be conceded by friend and foe, and even assented to by the delegation from New York State. In Pennsylvania the State administration is not arbitrarily leading the party; it is simply in close touch with and fairly reflecting the overwhelming sentiment of the party in every section of the Commonwealth, and the coming State Convention will be substantially unanimous in support of the policy of Governor Pattison and positive in the support of Cleveland."

STATE SENATOR BROWN, of New York, says that if Cleveland is nominated he will bet $25,000 that he will carry that state.

EX-POSTMASTER GENERAL FRANK HATTON, of that state, declares that Iowa is hopelessly lost to the Republicans.

THE Cincinnati Times Star, the leading Republican paper of Ohio, predicts that the "Buckeye state will go for the Democratic presidential nominee next fall."

SENATOR CULLUM, of Illinois, announces his withdrawal from the contest for the Republican presidential nomination. Gen. Alger, of Michigan, and ex-Senator Blair, of New Hampshire, still remain in the field.

SENATOR PEFFER "knows a thing or two" after all. He says that if Harrison and Cleveland are the presidential nominees, Cleveland will be the president.

THE Baltimore Sugar Refinery, which has been closed for some time, is to be enlarged to a capacity of 1,800 barrels of refined sugar per day, and be put in operation again by July 1st.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, April 8, 1892.

Editor of Compiler: Harrison, Morton and "boodle," furnished by Wall Street and protected manufacturers, was the combination that brought the present administration into existence, and notice has just been served upon Republican aspirants to the Vice Presidential nomination, by no less a personage than Vice President Morton himself, that the same combination has been formed to run the Republican National machine again this year. There was a disposition sometime ago to freeze Mr. Morton out of the combination because of his unwillingness to pledge himself to raise the amount of money named by Chairman Clarkson as necessary to pay for his renomination, and the impression was allowed to go out that Mr. Morton did not care for a renomination. But since the withdrawal of Mr. Blaine, Mr. Morton has reconsidered the matter, and agreed to pay the price demanded, and he now naively announces that he will accept a renomination should it be tendered him by the Minneapolis convention.

Speaker Crisp found it necessary, previous to the passage of the Springer free wool bill by the House, to administer a lesson in parliamentary law and good manners to Representative Burrows, of Michigan, who in the absence of ex-Czar Reed was attempting to play his role, and it will be a long time before the scene is forgotten by those who witnessed it. Mr. Burrows, who has a voice which has been likened to a fog horn, stood up shouting "I insist"—when he was interrupted by the sharp command of the Speaker, "the gentleman from Michigan will resume his seat." One glance at the determined face of the Speaker, and Mr. Burrows dropped into his seat, looking like a cowed dog.

If there is any truth in the rumor that Whitelaw Reed's resignation as minister to France is tendered in order that he may be free to manipulate a new Blaine boom, Mr. Reed is entitled to the champion belt as a prevaricator. He was in town for three days this week, and he spent the most of that time with Mr. Blaine, and when asked about the rumor he said: "Mr. Blaine is not a candidate. He meant every word he said in his letter. I think Mr. Harrison will be renominated with very little opposition." DEM.

THE Franklin County Democracy have elected the following delegates to the State Convention: O. C. Bowers, James B. Plasterer, C. F. Fendrick, D. D. Swanger and W. T. Omwake. The first two are claimed as adherents of Secretary Harrity and the remainder of the Orr-Stenger faction. The vote was extremely close and shows that our Franklin county friends are pretty evenly divided on the question of State politics. We hope they will soon begin to see that this sort of internecine war does not pay. It has already served to increase the Republican majority in the county from 200 to 700.—Fulton Dem.

A Plain Case of Robbery.

It is time to put refined sugar on the free list, to stop the robbery of the American people by the sugar trust. Here are the facts:

The sugar trust now owns every active sugar refinery in the United States except three. Those three are owned by large stockholders in the trust, and are operated "in harmony" with it. The trust has, therefore, an actual monopoly of the business in this country.

The actual value of the plants it controls is less than $35,000,000, but the trust is capitalized at $85,000,000, and it will pay this year 34 per cent. on that false capitalization, or 73 per cent. on actual investment.

It was extorting less while it had opposition, but since it bought up the remaining opposition it has deliberately added three eighths of a cent a pound to refined sugar. In other words, it has levied an additional tax of $22,500,000 a year upon the people of the country who consume sugar.

This is extortion, pure and simple. There is nothing whatever given in return, for the trust is enabled to take it solely by virtue of the tariff duty of one-half cent a pound on foreign refined sugar. Even if foreign sugar were on the free list the cost of bringing it here—about one-eighth of a cent a pound—would enable the trust to undersell foreign competitors. The additional tariff duty enables it to extort more than $20,000,000 a year from the people.

The Government gives the trust its raw materials free. Nay, more; it taxes the people to pay two cents a pound of the purchase price of all raw sugar bought by the trust from American producers. Why should the Government also give the trust the means of extorting $20,000,000 a year over and above naturally enormous profits? Why should there not be a bill presented at once to put refined sugar on the free list, so that the sugar trust may be compelled to sell at a reasonable price and a fair profit? Why should an organization of enormously rich monopolists be especially authorized by law to rob the people in this way?—World.

A SECOND TARIFF REFORM BILL PASSED.—On Saturday last, by a vote of 167 to 46, the House passed the second of the tariff bills designed to illustrate the reform policy of the Democratic party. This was the bill to admit free of duty imported bagging for cotton, machinery used in the manufacture of bagging, cotton gins and hoop iron or steel for cotton ties. Machinery to be used by the farmers of the West in the manufacture of beet sugar is under the McKinley act, free of duty. The bill passed Saturday grants a like favor to the farmers of the South.

RHODE ISLAND elects a Republican governor by a couple hundred majority. The state has always been a strong protection centre, and the meagre majority in that direction at this time makes it very doubtful at the Presidential election.

There was another and the 5th flag raising at Poplar Springs school-house, on Friday evening, April 8th. Although the evening was not very favorable, the house was crowded. The meeting was called to order by John T. Currens, who called to the chair as president, Albert Lochbaum, and Jacob Sheely secretary. The flag was presented by John Sites, of near Fairfield, to Albert Lochbaum, secretary of the Franklin school-board, with appropriate remarks by both, it being the third flag accepted by him. The president then introduced Hon. Wm. T. Ziegler, of Gettysburg, who spoke about one hour and a half, giving in detail the origin and adoption of the flag. W. C. Sheely, Esq., was introduced and spoke at great length, what and what not to teach about the flag. Mr. John T. Currens made a motion that a vote of thanks be tendered the speakers, and that all that aided in the raising of the pole and procuring of the large flag. Everybody stepped outside to witness the raising of the flag which was run up by John Lightner to the top of a 70 foot pole amid three rousing cheers, and all returned to their homes well pleased. The flag was raised and the beautiful pole put up by the patrons and citizens of Poplar Springs school, and to them is much praise and credit due.

We had a thunder gust on Tuesday morning, accompanied with thunder and lightning. This is the second for this year. O.

Official World's Fair Guide.

It affords us pleasure to announce that the Official Guide to the World's Columbian Exposition and the great city of Chicago is now ready in elegant book form of over 400 pages, richly embellished with superb illustrations of the highest order. The aid of the best photographers and engravers has been invoked that the beautiful and picturesque features of the great Exposition and Exposition and points of interest throughout the city of Chicago be clearly presented. Twenty millions of dollars will have been expended on the grounds and buildings before the gates are thrown open in 1893. Who can imagine what the genius of many men can create with such a vast sum at their command? Who can picture in imagination what these wonderful buildings and grounds will look like when erected? The fairy castles of tales of fiction will not compare with them. The Guide does not only describe to the minutest detail everything of inestimable value pertaining to the Exposition and Chicago, but a full page picture of each of the mammoth exhibit buildings in oil colors. Also many others, illustrating artistically the useful, the curious and the beautiful that will be there in magnificent display. Whatever movable things the world has that can please the eye, delight the ear and instruct the mind—the richest products of every clime.

It caps the climax with a magnificent cycloramic view, "Bird's eye View of the Exposition Grounds and Buildings," beautifully lithographed in eight oil colors, size 7x27 inches.

It is a book for the millions who contemplate visiting Chicago in 1893. It will be purchased by the millions who cannot go, but will desire to know just what their friends are seeing. In fact, every loyal American citizen should possess a copy of this great work. The well-known Pacific Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo., are the sole State agents, and they want agents to sell the book in every town. Full particulars and terms will be sent on application. Read their advertisement in another column. 1t.

A telegram, on Wednesday, from Harrisburg to the Philadelphia papers states that: "Austin L. Taggart, the Granger candidate for Congressman at large, was in Harrisburg a short time to-day and spoke very hopefully of the outlook, so far as he is concerned."

"So far as he is concerned." That's about the extent of Mr. Taggart's interests and efforts. During the last session of the legislature he paraded himself as the opponent of Quay and his ring and the special champion of the Granger's tax bill. Before the session was over Quay and his crowd owned him body, breeches and boots, and when the session ended Taggart went home with the promise of political preferment and the granges, whom he professed to represent, with nothing but a "fake" tax bill and a record for inconsistency, on the part of their mouth-piece, that years will not efface.—Bellefonte Watchman.

BEWARE of ointments for Catarrh that contain mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. An Only Daughter CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of consumption. His child is now in this country and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2-cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. A Matter of Great Importance to You.

If suffering from long standing Chronic Diseases, diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Nervous System, as well as those suffering from EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT TROUBLE.

H. M. TAYLOR, Specialist. J. J. McLELLAN, M. D., Specialist.

Wonderfully Successful in All

CHRONIC :-: DISEASES!

—DISEASES OF THE—

All Diseases are Successfully Treated by Them.

CHRONIC DISEASES OF EYES.

Such as Granulated Lids, Chronic Inflammation of the Lids, of the Iris, or the Choroid, of the Retina, Chronic Ulcerations, Spasms of the Lids and Eye, Tears running of the cheeks, Day and Night Blindness, Purulent or Mattery Sore eyes, Gonorrheal Ophthalmia, Symphatic Ophthalmia, Red Blotches or Brown Spots on the Ball, white spots on the eye, Glaucoma or cupping of the Nerve, Amaurosis, Falling out of Lashes, Sores, Redness of Edges of Lids and Eyes, and all other diseases to which the eye or its appendages are liable, positive and rapid cure guaranteed.

A WORD ABOUT CATARRH.

It is the mucous membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid envelope surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages, that Catarrh makes its stronghold. Once established it eats into the very vitals and renders life a long drawn breath of misery and disease, dulling the sense of hearing, trammeling the power of speech, destroying the faculty of smell, tainting the breath and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Insidiously, by creeping on from a simple cold in the head, it assaults the membranous lining and envelopes the bones, eating the delicate coats and causing inflammation, sloughing and death. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient, and all alleviatives are simply procrastinated sufferings, leading to a fatal termination.

CHRONIC DISEASES.

The doctors treat no acute diseases, but make an entire specialty of chronic and long standing diseases. Cases given up by other doctors and pronounced incurable, they most desire to see. The Doctors have treated over 15,000 cases in Ohio in the last 12 years, many of which had been given up as incurable—some to be blind, others to be deaf, and a large number to be invalids for life. But to-day, healthy, sound and hearty, and many are started on the high road to health and recovery every day.

The doctors are surrounded with the largest collection of fine instruments ever imported to this country for examining and treating all chronic diseases of the Head, Face, Eye, Ear, Throat, Heart, Lungs, Stomach, Liver, Kidney, Bladder, Skin, Brain and Nervous System Cancers, Tumors, Piles, Swellings, Old Sores, Fits, Paralysis, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Dropsy, Gout, Sick Headache, Debility, Depression of Spirits, Diseases of Children, Hereditary Diseases, etc., etc., and in fact all long standing and Chronic Diseases.

RECTAL DISEASES.

They also make a specialty of all form of Rectal Diseases, Piles—internal and external, itching and bleeding, rectal ulcers, fissures, fistula—which are often taken for Cancerous and Lung Diseases, all cured if taken in time. Remember we cure all forms of Piles without pain, detention or interruption from business, and without the use of a knife, caustic, ligature or injection. Come and be convinced. Dr. McLeod's these diseases a specialty for ten years in a large city.

Diseases of women, such as have baffled the skill of all physicians and remedies, quickly cured.

Will be at EAGLE HOTEL, Gettysburg, Pa., on THURSDAY APRIL 28, FRIDAY, APRIL 29, 1892. Return visits every four weeks.

The regular meeting of the Town Council was held on Tuesday evening all the members present, the Burgess presiding

The Burgess read a copy of the notices served on the Railroad Superintendents relative to flagmen speed and condition of the streets as governed by ordinances

Mr Lewis said that the W M R R had commenced their work that ties were on the ground and other lumber sawed to put their tracks in first class condition as soon as the weather would permit He explained the difficulty in moving heavy freight [illegible] the ordinance was literally enforced from the extreme limits of the borough He quoted Mr Hood as of the opinion that while the road was a benefit to the town the burden of flagmen at all crossings at all times would be onerous During the [illegible] years this road has been running no one has been hurt on the crossings On busy days when the town was crowded flagmen were on duty Chambersburg, with all its numerous crossings has but one flagman

Mr Eitter said that shifting used to be done over the Stratton street crossing now at Carlisle street He thought the shifting should be done on the company's land and that the speed of freight trains could be kept down He wanted the ordinance enforced, as roads were no better than other people and should not be allowed to occupy public property

Mr Wolf cited a case coming under his observation where a deaf man made a narrow escape on the Carlisle street crossing

Mr [illegible] objected to the stopping of engines on the crossing on the arrival of trains

Dr W H O'Neal suggested that the matter be deferred so that the Railroad Companies could be heard He did not approve of [illegible] on them as railroads contributed considerable to the material interests of the community

The Burgess thought the borough had been subordinated to the railroad, and Mr Hood had nothing to complain of He insisted on a brick pavement along the Ziegler & Holtzworth warehouse property on North street

The Burgess reported the [illegible] of borough Treasurer John [illegible] approved [illegible] Frame John Throne [illegible] and D G Minter as bondsmen

Mr [illegible] Dinner presented a gavel which was received with thanks

The [illegible] of J H Stultz and [illegible] were reported [illegible]

Petition of Dr [illegible] McCleary and [illegible] of [illegible] to [illegible] on Carlisle street between the [illegible] in front of the [illegible] McClellan House [illegible]

[illegible]

On motion of Mr Tyrrell [illegible] Secretary was instructed to secure a rock vault box for the keeping of [illegible] and other valuable borough papers Dr O'Neal spoke of the [illegible] of the borough [illegible]

Burgess reported that he had awarded the [illegible] Lehman [illegible] $17 75 [illegible]

Mr Stine said that canvassing was done [illegible] license [illegible] police [illegible]

Dr O'Neal referred to the irregularity of [illegible] and moved that the money in bank at [illegible] per cent be used for its redemption

The following bills were paid

C [illegible] Spangler [illegible] John [illegible] Jr furnishing sign for [illegible] Cashman & Co [illegible] Borough Auditor Charles [illegible] Dougherty John A Hamilton and [illegible] copying and recording ordinance $26 2 [illegible] work [illegible] shoveling snow John Ziegler $1 7 [illegible] Slonaker $1 [illegible] John Warner 90 cents [illegible] Weand 97 cents Harry [illegible] 60 cents Robert Walker 15 Chas Stoner 7 Robert [illegible] 17 cents [illegible] 15 cents [illegible] Carver janitor $7 67 [illegible] J [illegible] $2 33 [illegible] vouchers were granted in favor of Treasurer [illegible] $200 interest coupons on outstanding bonds and $1 000 for bonds redeemed

Another [illegible] hour session was held last night all present but Mr Fawney of the [illegible] ward

The Secretary reported having secured a box in the [illegible] Bank vault and the Attorney that he had approved the Auditors' [illegible]

Mr [illegible] for Irvington Washington [illegible] appeared and asked for an outlet for the alley in rear of his property across the railroad tracks Referred to Highway Committee for [illegible]

Dr O'Neal offered the following I move that the $1 000 now [illegible] the Gettysburg National Park bearing 3 per cent interest be devoted to paying a $1 000 bond [illegible] during the term of David Wolf's burgess-ship and not used

On a rising vote Messrs O'Neal Wolf and Stoner supported the motion Messrs Tipton Stine, Eyers Litter and Spangler against

New ordinances relative to itinerant merchants and hawking and peddling were adopted which will appear hereafter The [illegible] ordinance was changed to allow killing in the borough at all times subject to health ordinances, also one forbidding the use of firearms

On motion of Mr Wolf a covered sewer was ordered put in between the properties of J J Kerr and James W Swope, on York street

The Burgess gave notice that he would appoint certain days for the granting of licenses as he did not want to be disturbed at all times He also pressed his demand for a day policeman Mr Litter moved that one of the present police serve in day time and one at night Mr Tipton offered an amendment that we have one for day and two for night service For the amendment Tipton, Stine and Lyers against O'Neal Litter, Wolf and Stoner, Spangler not voting The original motion was then put and lost

Mr Tipton moved to appoint a day police man from May 1 to Nov 1 Yeas Tipton Stine Lyers and Spangler, nays O'Neal Wolf Litter and Stoner A tie existing the Burgess voted in the affirmative Dr O'Neal questioned the burgess' right to vote and the Attorney's opinion was asked which he was about to give when the burgess objected A motion that he be heard was then passed without opposition, when he stated that he had given the matter consideration and in his opinion which was supported by other attorneys the Burgess had no right to vote Dr O'Neal protested [illegible] but the burgess would hear of no other test than taking the matter regularly to Court

On motion of Mr Spangler adjourned

Cumberland Township Meeting.

In response to the call for a meeting of the taxpayers of Cumberland township at Round Top on Saturday afternoon a goodly number of gentlemen gathered Mr Theo McAllister was made president Mr J M Plank vice president and Mr John C Schriver secretary A number of speeches were made deprecating the running of the electric railroad on the township roads and a committee, consisting of Messrs [illegible] Hersh Theo McAllister and H D Bream was appointed to consult counsel in the matter of restraining the running of the road and committee to have power to call another meeting The matter of road machinery was crowded out by the railroad discussion

DRESS GOODS.

By Dress Goods we mean every fabric, Silk, Wool and Cotton, suitable for dresses Our notion of a successful Dress Goods stock has been the idea of the dress wearers of this community, and it is the fact of their shown appreciation of the past results of our ideas that enables us to show decided progress each season We know that by our Dress Goods stock our general stock is gauged we therefore put into its purchase a discriminating judgment beyond, perhaps, any single department in our store We know that in no town of double the size of ours can such a Dress Good stock be found in its all around attractiveness and elegance, and in its fulfillment of fashion's demands and the demands of every class of buyers as to colorings and weaves Our experience as buyers makes the price satisfactory no matter what the fabric.

The trade signs point to an extraordinary Silk season, and we show in addition to our regular line of Guaranteed Black Silks a fuller line of colors in Faille and Armures than ever before, also a very rich line of Printed Indias, Swivels, Changeable Taffetas, &c., a veritable silk store In Wools everything in the new weaves and colors, Chevron, Cheviot and Bedford Cord effects in cloths, Plain Broad Cloths in the new rich shades only obtainable in high class goods—Bedford Cords—Serges, in three qualities and in all the new colors (a price revelation)—Henriettas—Cashmeres—Fancies. Everything desirable in Black Dress Goods, while not a specialty with us any more than colors, yet from the variety of weaves we show and the correctness of shades gives the idea that we wish to give it—that if you are at all critical we are the people you want to visit when you wish correct black dress Just now we show two specials in Black Henriettas, one at 75 cents and the other 89 cents which we are willing to have compared with goods at a higher price from elsewhere Our Cotton Dress Fabrics in our next The only stock of

Potato Planting in Trenches

We reprint the following from an exchange just at hand. The COMPILER has no personal knowledge to impart on the subject, but would advise moderate trials in Adams county of it all. Potatoes should now be planted as soon as the weather may permit. Thoroughly [illegible] and well fertilized soil rarely fails [illegible] and the reputation which Adams county potatoes have so [illegible] gained for high quality will make them sell in any market. The trench plant thus described:

Quite a revolution was effected by the system of growing potatoes by the trench method [illegible] experiments [illegible] that a grower could produce over 125 bushels of potatoes on one [illegible] of an acre or at the rate of more than 1,000 bushels on an acre, as was done by Mr. A. [illegible] of Pennsylvania. [illegible] the new system at once attracted attention [illegible] for Mr. [illegible] secured over 500 bushels of potatoes on a full acre [illegible]. It is not yet conceded that the trench system is superior to the usual plot culture, but it is [illegible] to state what the trench system is in order that those who so prefer may make experiments in that direction the coming season [illegible].

The land is plowed a foot deep and [illegible] inches. The seed is then planted and the trenches left open. The [illegible] filled [illegible] the plant grows [illegible] gradually [illegible] growth [illegible] potatoes produce more tubers as well as [illegible] quality [illegible]. But when the trench is filled to the [illegible] the usual [illegible] though some prefer to hill up the rows, believing that by so doing more moisture is [illegible] the soil. [illegible] mode of growing potatoes is to plant the seed [illegible] six inches deep but as the trench system calls for [illegible] inches [illegible] the width of [illegible] plow furrow [illegible] three feet [illegible] preferred [illegible] from [illegible] several [illegible] of tubers [illegible] crowded. [illegible]

The [illegible] varieties [illegible] and the trench system is very simple [illegible] little to learn other than [illegible] the large crops the ground [illegible] with a fertilizer [illegible] phosphoric acid and [illegible] potash. [illegible]

Keep the Manure in Sight

[illegible]

Parsnips and Carrots

[illegible]

An excellent way to secure early [illegible] is to use egg shells. Fill the [illegible] with rich earth [illegible] plant a few seeds [illegible] the top, and when transplanting the young plants, [illegible] the shell [illegible] the [illegible] and plant first, [illegible] crushing it before [illegible] earth around it. In this manner the young plant receives no check, and a large number of shells may be used by placing them on a [illegible] warm and sunny place.

How to make one horse do the work of two is a problem not easily solved, but the farmer who does not carefully sharpen his plow point or get rid of one that is worn and rusty will impose 50 per cent more work on his team than is really necessary.

TAKE red lead and pure boiled linseed oil and mix to proper consistency and you will find it the best iron roof paint in the market, as it will never crack or peel.

Starting in Gardening

There will be many new beginners this Spring in gardening. The general crop of common vegetables pay accordingly as they are produced early and are well grown. And for a beginner they are the safest to spend money and labor upon, but nevertheless there should be an assortment of the finer kinds, and will pay if only in getting experience and retaining nice customers for next season. But fine vegetables cost more to raise, are most easily lost by neglect or want of knowing how to grow them, and decay on hand if not sold the day they are picked. Still all this must be risked in a small way, and if the venture results in a small loss it must come out of the common stuff which does succeed. So go in lightly, learn as you go, and be thus prepared for next year.

In the whole range of cultivation there is nothing so neat, so nice and so easily managed when the principles are well understood, as plants grown under heat. The fresh hot manure below giving out heat during fermentation, the sunshine through the glass above also giving heat new above ground, the cool air to be admitted by raising the [illegible] more or less as required, and the watering, by using warm or cooler water, gives the gardener as perfect control over the proper growth of the plants as an engineer has over a steam engine. To force growth at the roots, we make the heating material of fresh horse manure. But if this is used with the sash [illegible] down, although the roots are stimulated, the tops are so also, and the plants become spindling, weak, watery, and totally unfit for any after use. This tendency is easily checked by letting in cool air by raising the sash. Thus by playing off the heat below against the cool air above, we produce strong rooted stocky plants, which when set out in the garden are in perfect order to grow up to perfect vegetables. The roots, as well as the tops, may also be forced by frequent watering with warm water, or if growth is too forward for the season, by using cold water. All these are like valves and levers in machinery, and act as governors to control plant growth. A gardener, among his hot beds, these for rapid growth, those for medium, and others for slow growth, [illegible] to all intents and purposes [illegible] for [illegible] plants for beauty of form, for tender succulence [illegible].

Putty and Paint

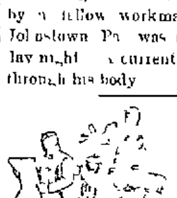

The most beautiful stretch of land that I have seen in the State lies between Cincinnati and Hamilton. The dwellings are rather thickly set, but every one is surrounded by fields which [illegible]. Looking out over the [illegible] from the car window [illegible] the problem has [illegible] to live in such a region. Some of the dwellings is good [illegible]. Well, [illegible] perhaps more than anything else. Painted dwellings [illegible] outbuildings. [illegible] — harmonious [illegible] preservatives. [illegible] must be handsomely designed. A barn so [illegible] weather [illegible] Around [illegible] handsome [illegible] painted. [illegible] our homes [illegible] good for them [illegible]

To tell mushrooms from toadstools without eating and waiting for the result, [illegible] If the onion remains white eat with confidence. If it turns black eat with an emetic or a stomach pump at hand. — [illegible]

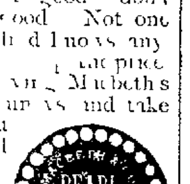

All kinds of stock eat and seem to [illegible] better when it is slight [illegible] good plan to season the fodder [illegible] the same as [illegible]. This method is sever [illegible] to commend it among [illegible] the regularity [illegible] the salting [illegible] There is [illegible] overgorging [illegible] stock will relish its [illegible] better and cleaner and [illegible] do better.

MUST LOOK TO THE POOR LAWS FOR RELIEF. — A tough problem has [illegible] for solution in Clearfield county. In consequence of a shut down at the Bloomington mines some six or seven hundred people are in want of food. They have had no work for [illegible] months and the situation is becoming serious. The overseers of the poor of [illegible] township have been appealed to, but as these people have not been [illegible] the township the overseers [illegible] giving them relief. The [illegible] having failed to save them from starvation, should the poor laws [illegible] the deficiency of the McKinley act. — [illegible]

WHILE attempting to light his pipe at an electric light, as he was told to do in a joke by a fellow workman, a Hungarian at Johnstown, Pa., was instantly killed Monday night. A current of 2,000 volts passed through his body.

JUST THINK OF THIS

Fifteen Thousand Dollars

Seems like a large sum for one firm to have invested in ready-made Clothing in Gettysburg

It is true, nevertheless, and as the senior member of the firm wishes to withdraw and that they may turn this into good hard cash, Stine & Son are selling their entire stock off at cost.

Just step in and examine goods and learn prices

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

Dr. G. C. Osgood, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. Kincheloe, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
